Letter from the Publisher

Welcome to Delaware Business Times' fourth annual Giving Guide. We are pleased to introduce you to 48 local nonprofits that work tirelessly each day to make our community better and stronger.

The Giving Guide has many purposes. First and foremost, we hope you will find organizations that get you excited about donating and/or volunteering. For the first time, we have added Donate buttons to our online Giving Guide so that you can go directly to the online giving pages of the nonprofits that offer them.

Second, we hope to introduce you to organizations that you might not be familiar with. Each profile includes mission statements, community impact, leadership information and giving and volunteer opportunities. They also provide important background information such as funding sources, annual revenue, and service area.

And third, we hope that the businesses and leaders that read the DBT will consider reaching out to some of these organizations – and others they may come across – to see if they can build a long-term relationship of giving and volunteering.

Organizations throughout Delaware are focused on innovation and on bringing in more donations, engaging and retaining more donors, and making a bigger impact on their target audiences. Donor loyalty and engagement continue to be a challenge and many nonprofits are focused on more creative ways to communicate with their donors, building – and maintaining – authentic relationships that will keep donors passionate about the organization's cause.

The Giving Guide kicks off with messages from our partners. Sheila Bravo, president and CEO of the Delaware Alliance for Nonprofit Advancement (DANA), focuses on the importance of General Fund (operating funds) giving in sustaining the work of these nonprofits. She makes the point that traditional sources of funding are not growing at the same pace as the demands and costs of those services.

United Way of Delaware President and CEO Michelle Taylor writes about her organization's five-year Living United 2024 strategy and its focus on three specific challenges measurable improvements in grade-level literacy by the end of third grade; workforce readiness through college and career readiness for young people; and financial stability and empowerment for low-income families.

Between tax reform and the changing political climate, nonprofits need to be flexible and adaptable to funding cuts and reduced giving levels. We hope that this guide reinforces the value that these organizations bring to our community and that it encourages you to dig deeper and consider supporting them and telling others about them.

Sincerely,

Robert J. Martinelli

Delaware Alliance for Nonprofit Advancement

Highly visible work doesn't happen without operating funds

Delawareans are a mighty force when it comes to volunteerism. Collectively, our state's citizens give more than 24 million hours of volunteer service annually (National & Community Service Corp., 2018). Those donated hours are invaluable to the more than 1,000 nonprofits operating in Delaware. But, when it comes to donating financially, there is a story that isn't being fully told.

Nonprofits are grateful for any and all donations, let's make that clear. But, when it comes to directing those donations, often people choose a specific program of their favorite nonprofit. For example, Mrs. Smith has seen the amazing work that her local senior center does keeping seniors engaged and vibrant, while giving a break to their caregivers and family members. When she writes out her check to them, she designates her money to the Caregivers Relief Program. What she may not know is that the Caregivers program is heavily funded now and into the future, but the center may be struggling with things that are less visible but still vital to the health of the organization – things like much-needed repairs to the senior center plumbing or providing enough nutritious food to their members. Without these issues solved, this nonprofit can't grow and thrive – and serve more seniors and their families.

While this is only an example, it does illustrate the difference between donating restricted dollars (to a specific program) versus giving to the general operating fund. As Delawareans, we need to not just donate to the programs, but also to fund the “stuff” that ensures those programs work effectively – what some call “overhead.” Everyone wants to see low overhead or operating costs of nonprofits – news stories of overinflated salaries have tainted our view of what nonprofits need in order to run their businesses.

In order to have sustainable nonprofits, they need to have funds to hire bookkeepers and accountants and to be able to invest in effective software to track expenses and measure quality, among other things. We want strong leadership at these organizations, so they need to have money for professional development and to pay competitive wages. We want nonprofits to promote their impact on the communities they serve, which requires funds devoted to websites, brochures, publicity, and research and evaluation. We want nonprofits to innovate, which means they need up-to-date technology to explore new initiatives, and to track and measure the effectiveness of their innovation.

Traditional sources of funding – foundation, government and business grants, financially backed partnerships and sponsorships are not growing at the same pace as the demands on their service from the audiences they work with and the increasing costs to do that work effectively and efficiently. There is a growing gap.

Thus, it is up to each of us to help make up the difference. We all benefit from the work of nonprofits in Delaware, and I encourage you to consider making a gift this year to a nonprofit of your choice with the permission to apply those dollars where they can use them the most – their general operating fund. If you have already donated to a program run by your favorite nonprofit, it's not too late to give again to their general fund – even if it's a small amount – it will be put to good use in ensuring the health of the organization.

Thank you for your generosity now and in the future,

Sincerely,

United Way of Delaware

Philosophy behind Living United 2024: Working together to accomplish more

I want to share some exciting news about what's going on at United Way of Delaware. After more than a year of research and planning, United Way of Delaware recently launched a five-year strategy called Living United 2024.

It's an ambitious plan to focus our resources and energy on three specific challenges in eight specific communities, up and down the state of Delaware. Instead of trying to boil the ocean by being everything to everyone, we're driving hard for measurable improvements in grade-level literacy by the end of third grade; workforce readiness through college and career readiness for young people and financial stability and empowerment for low-income families.

So, you might ask, what's different about this strategy? Everyone cares about those things, right? Of course, the answer is yes, they do. But the difference is that Living United 2024 harnesses the combined strength of the entire community to tackle these issues. We call this collective impact.

Collective impact is the secret sauce in Living United 2024. By engaging all our agency partners and stakeholders in a common, shared agenda, and by directing our resources in specific communities with laser-like precision, we know we can move the meter in all of these areas within the five-year plan period.

As a quick example, we know that if kids are not reading on grade level by the end of third grade, chances are they will remain behind their peers throughout school and that many will never graduate from high school. In some of the most underserved areas of Delaware, fewer than 20% of third-graders are reading on grade level. The social and economic implications of this are unacceptable.

But the good news is, along with the State of Delaware and other community-based organizations, United Way of Delaware is a major force behind Get Delaware Reading. This is a year-round, multi-generational strategy to surround kindergarteners, and their families, with literacy supports, one-on-one coaching, reading mentors, and social services that will prepare a growing number of Delaware children to enter fourth grade reading on grade level.

Programs like Get Delaware Reading and Living United 2024 work because people like you care. I am so grateful for the ongoing support that United Way of Delaware receives from this community. Together, we can author a new future for the people of our state.

HOW WE MAKE AN IMPACT

When children and teens have the influence of a caring adult, they are more likely to avoid risky behaviors and achieve personal and academic success. Today's young people face a variety of challenges, and being matched with a Big Brother or Big Sister helps them to navigate those challenges and reach their potential.

“Littles” who are matched with “Bigs” are less likely to use drugs and alcohol, they receive better grades in school, are more confident overall, and more likely to graduate high school, and have high aspirations!

GIVING OPPORTUNITIES

We depend on local donations to help us meet the growing need for our services every year. Your gift will help change lives one child at a time. All donations help us provide high-quality mentoring services for Delaware youth. Donations are accepted year-round through our website bbbsde.org; and through our local fundraising events.

VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES

Become a Mentor! You can help shape a child's future for the better by empowering them to achieve their potential. Check out our website www.bbbsde.org to find the mentoring option for you. It takes just a LITTLE time to make a BIG difference in a child's life. Currently, we have a strong need for male mentors, with over 75 boys waiting statewide.

Colonial PVA continually represents its members and others with disabilities at all levels of government and works with other groups to ensure ADA compliance is enforced.

The chapter has approximately 320 members in different areas of responsibility. We all work with other disability groups to increase public awareness of the potential of veterans and others with disabilities.

The Colonial PVA realizes that sports and recreation is a valuable rehabilitative tool in rebuilding self-confidence as well as promoting the health and welfare of its participants.

Service officers are available at each VA regional office within our area of responsibility. They are available to assist our members and other veterans with claims and benefits.

Unique to the Colonial PVA is our Accessibility Needs Program initiated in 1985. The program is vital to the disabled community because it provides much-needed aids for independent living such as wheelchairs, prosthetic aids, ramps, wheelchair modifications for homes, bathrooms and vehicles.

HOW WE MAKE AN IMPACT

Known as the Compassionate Care Hospice Foundation from 2004-2019, we helped 74,000 financially devastated hospice patients in 24 states by providing food, shelter and utilities. This past February, Compassionate Care Hospice joined forces with another nationwide group, we ventured out on our own with a slightly modified name, reach and focus!

Our new organization provides one-time financial relief to Delaware residents.

GIVING OPPORTUNITIES

Your thoughtful gift may help pay the rent or keep the lights on, share a meal or provide transportation to life-saving treatment for Delawareans living with insufficient financial resources who have received a serious and life-limiting diagnosis yet continue to be engaged in active treatment for their terminal illness.

VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES

We are relying upon the good-heartedness of Delawareans and the good “heartedness” of Delawareans to build greater impact and commitment to helping each other through the difficult and frightening times serious illness brings. Do you like to host or help with special events to raise awareness and funds? Maybe this is just what you are looking for!

HOW WE MAKE AN IMPACT

Connecting Generations impacts our community by cultivating children's well-being. During the 2018/2019 school year, we reached over 3,000 students in Delaware schools with our social-emotional programming and mentoring. Our social-emotional programs focus on helping children build lifelong skills such as self-management, self-awareness, social awareness, relationship skills and responsible decision-making.

Our mentoring program currently has 1,400 mentors in almost 100 schools across the state. Each mentor is matched with a student and they meet weekly during the school day for the year.

GIVING OPPORTUNITIES

There are many ways you can support Connecting Generations through charitable giving. Contributions remain local and provide direct support to children and teens in Delaware. You may connect us with business and community leaders who will encourage mentoring, volunteer as a mentor, or attend one of our events listed on our website: connecting-generations.org.

VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES

Connecting Generations has volunteer opportunities to mentor students in all three counties across Delaware. Mentors commit 30-60 minutes each week during the day to work with the same student for the school year. HOW WE MAKE AN IMPACT

Last year we provided more than 8.6 million pounds of food to hungry neighbors in Delaware. Our services assist more than 117,000 food-insecure Delawareans. Many families are faced with difficult decisions — pay the rent or buy food, pay for medicine or eat. We step in so families don't have to make these difficult decisions. In addition to emergency food services, we also lift adults out of poverty by providing workforce development opportunities.

GIVING OPPORTUNITIES

For every dollar given to the Food Bank of Delaware, we can provide two meals to Delawareans in need. Generous donors enable us to provide not only emergency food through our network of partners, but also nutrition education, outreach and workforce development through Delaware Food Works.

VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES

Volunteers are the heart and soul of our organization. Last year, we had close to 16,000 volunteer visits for a total of more than 41,000 donated hours. We have volunteer opportunities in Newark and Milford. Volunteers must be at least 7 years old. Volunteers may sign up online at www.fbd.volunteerhub.com.

HOW WE MAKE AN IMPACT

We raise funds and awareness in support of independent meal delivery programs, which served nearly 700,000 meals to 4,634 seniors in 2018.

Meal recipients are men and women, aged 60 plus, who often live alone. Their average age is late 70s. Many struggle to balance their needs on a fixed income, and are unable to shop or safely prepare a meal. The nutritious meal, volunteer visit, and safety check help seniors cope with the biggest threats of aging: hunger, isolation, and loss of independence. Once meals are covered, we fund kitchen equipment, and carriers to keep food safe during delivery.

GIVING OPPORTUNITIES

Make a direct contribution at MealsOnWheelsDe.org.

Support fundraising by:

- Becoming an event sponsor
- Attending an event
- Donating an auction item

Your donation will make a meaningful impact on the lives of homebound senior Delawareans.

Spring events: The Cellar Masters' Wine Auction and Dinner April 4, The Celebrity Chefs' Brunch April 26

VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES

Volunteer to help with a fundraising event. Events take place throughout the year and across the state. Volunteer on the event day, or join the planning committee. Committees meet monthly to plan an event with staff assistance. Volunteers to deliver meals on a weekday lunchtime with your local Meals On Wheels program. Commitment is flexible.

HOW WE MAKE AN IMPACT

MMF combats neuromuscular diseases in three ways: Physical accommodations, financial assistance, and emotional support. We provide physical accommodations in the way of wheelchairs, ramps, and equipment to significantly enhance the quality of life of our “Muscle Champions” – individuals living with muscle disease. Medical bills also accumulate at alarming rates. We help relieve the stress related to medical bills and treatment costs. MMF also provides vital emotional support. A diagnosis can often leave a person feeling alone and isolated. We provide the love and support all families deserve to enhance understanding and awareness about their disease.

GIVING OPPORTUNITIES

Monetary donations, bequests, in-kind donations, workplace giving, employer gift-matching programs, donate through your payroll, and event sponsorships are several ways to give. Supporters give to MMF because we continue to fulfill the unmet needs of families who are affected by muscle disease. An organization founded by a family affected by muscle disease, MMF understands the obstacles that families endure from a first person perspective. Our unique experiences and expert staff help MMF allocate donations to create the greatest impact in our families’ lives.

VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES

As a valued member of the Muscle Movement Foundation’s Volunteer Team, your strength will support our life-changing services. We depend on the compassionate efforts of volunteers to support our events, support groups, and fundraisers, so we can help families who are affected by muscle disease LIVE LIFE STRONGER! We have volunteer opportunities available for events, community outreach, family home visits, support groups, and fundraising.
