John 'Sticks' Brazil, drumming again after stroke, to perform
Mother's Day in Vallejo and on May 29 in Fairfield. PAGE 2

‘Sticks’ almost stuck with stroke

Brazil nuts about hitting the drums again

— John “Sticks” Brazil

John “Sticks” Brazil can pretty much remember how to play every song he ever played on the drums. And for the 71-year-old Vallejo native now anchored in Fairfield, that’s plenty of drum solos ago.

However, that gig in Windsor last March when he suffered a stroke? Brazil still draws a blank.

“It’s one of those deals, one thing about the stroke. I lost that memory,” he said.

Fortunately for the musician, a rattled memory from that dreaded day appears to be the only side effects of “going fuzzy” that night, two days before his wife, Cathy, drove him to the emergency room.

In recovery many years, Brazil figured someone “slipped me some booze. The last two sets, I didn’t know what the songs were. I played what came to me. I was feeling funky and weird.”

Though he had to wait about six weeks for surgery because of the pandemic, doctors at Kaiser Permanente Sacramento eventually repaired clogged blood vessels in Brazil’s brain. He never suffered any form of paralysis in his side or face.

“Fortunately, I didn’t lose any feeling in my limbs. Even the doctors were amazed I’m OK,” said Brazil.

Though Brazil has a follow-up visit this week to make sure all is well, he expects he’ll be holding those precious drumsticks Sunday for a Mother’s Day gig with Rendishun at Vino Godfather on Mare Island in Vallejo and May 29 at the Pioneer Tap Room in Fairfield.

It’s Brazil’s initial gigs with Rendishun, laughing that he’s played with “at least 100” bands. He said he can’t wait to play “old rock ‘n roll stuff. Good danceable music,” adding that there wasn’t much learning curve for tunes he’s often played before in his extensive career.

“It is really amazing with all the things I’ve forgotten — like the night I had the stroke — that I know all the songs. I guess music is embedded in me,” he said.

Perhaps, he pondered, “it’s because I’m one tough marine,” harkening to his two years of military service. Not that he admittedly needed to be too tough as a meteorologist.

“That’s what they told me in boot camp that they wanted me to be,” Brazil said.

Shipped out to Vietnam? Well, not quite.

“I made it as far as New Jersey,” said Brazil, 18 at the time and “just a kid.”

Born in Vallejo, Brazil rarely left the Bay Area.

“What a culture shock,” he said during his military stint.

Brazil was hardly your basic clean-cut teen. Not with access to marijuana, alcohol and other drugs.

“I was a hippie,” he said of his youth.

Brazil last downed that beer — or was it Seagram’s 7 and 7-Up? — Jan. 21, 1984.

He was at Antlers Tavern in Pinole “and that’s when I decided this (lifestyle) wasn’t for me,” Brazil said. “The Lord spoke to me. I heard a voice, ‘That’s it. You’re done. You can’t go on like this anymore.’”

He’s been clean and sober since. And, apparently, not even a stroke can stop Sticks Brazil.

“Even if I wasn’t supposed to play because of the stroke, I would probably play. It’s in me,” he said.

Brazil has long taken this “one-day-at-a-time” seriously and more so since the stroke and surgery that included 38 staples up his left ear to the top of his head.

Yes, he said, any surgery that serious could have left him dead on the operating table. And this one was seven hours.

“They’ve done it many times, but there’s always a chance,” Brazil said. “I did get together with my family and let them know the whole ‘if anything happens ...’”

Nothing did — other than Brazil’s recovered and on blood thinners — as he continues to make music with, apparently, no doctor’s warning.

“I never heard them say it was good,” Brazil said. “But I never heard them say it was bad.”

Rendishun plays Vino Godfather, 500 Walnut Ave., Sunday, Mother’s Day, 2 to 5 p.m., and Sat, May 16, Pioneer Tap Room, 4 to 7 p.m.,

'Antique Roadshow' flips the script with celebrity editions

By Mark Kennedy

The Associated Press

NEW YORK » Chef, cookbook author and TV host Carla Hall has always wondered about an antique wooden highchair her family has long cherished.

What is its history? How much is it worth?

She finally got answers when PBS' "Antiques Roadshow" visited her Washington, D.C., home. It turns out that the highchair is not hand carved and dates to between 1880-1920. It's worth only about $100.

Even so, Hall still adores it. She and her husband are remodeling their home in a more modern style, but the highchair is staying.

"This will still be front and center somewhere in our modern house," she says after the TV visit. "I'm not selling anything."

Hall was one of several celebrity guests on four new special episodes of "Antiques Roadshow" that were filmed during the pandemic.

The producers flipped the script. Instead of people — and their would-be treasures — coming to meet the appraisers in a big hall, the appraisers went to the people. And this time, the people were famous.

"I think it's very humanizing. They share with you this very vulnerable moment. They are just like any other 'Roadshow' guest," says "Antique Roadshow" executive producer Marsha Bemko.

The first celebrity edition airs Monday and features comedian Jay Leno, actor S. Epatha Merkerson, author Jason Reynolds, Olympic figure skater Nancy Kerrigan and pro golfer Dottie Pepper. Celebrities have appeared on "Antique Roadshow" before, but this is the first time they've been fea-

Katy Kane, left, as she appraises celebrity chef Carla Hall's vintage purse collection in an episode of "Antiques Roadshow Celebrity Edition," airing May 10 on PBS.

WGBH/PBS

— Marsha Bemko, "Antique Roadshow" executive producer

tured for an entire episode.

Kerrigan gets a pair of her Olympic medals appraised as well as several competitive costumes, including the Vera Wang wedding dress outfit she wore at the 1992 Olympics. A torch from the 1996 Summer Olympics that she bought for $300 as part of a relay is now worth as much as $7,000.

Reynolds wanted to know about the value of a Langston Hughes letter, an advanced reader copy of Claude Brown's "Manchild in the Promised Land" and a first edition signed copy of Toni Morrison's "Beloved." Merkerson has a collection of Black memorabilia, and Pepper has a golf cup and an heirloom table.

Leno needs a lot more help from the team. He and his wife were instantly smitten by a 16,000-square foot estate in Newport, Rhode Island, and bought it pretty much on the spot, with all the furnishings. But he has no idea what he's got, from paintings to sculptures.

"He did knock on the door and buy everything

— ketchup included — and doesn't know what's in there. So it was a real chance for us to help him," says Bemko.

Future episodes — airing May 10, May 17 and May 24 — include the likes of humorist John Hodgman, actor Ronny Chieng, cartoonist Mo Willems, journalist Soledad O'Brien, fashion designer Christian Siriano and TV personality Carson Kressley.

"This is true across the board of everybody we visited on this show and all the others: They are human beings like you and me," says Bemko. "They really are curious about what they own and they want to know, and not just because of the money. It's not all about the value."

The celebrity episodes were a clever answer to the pandemic and a chance to shake things up during the 25th anniversary of "Antique Roadshow."

Initially, with flying not an option, the celebrities chosen to be featured were within driving distance of the show's Boston headquarters at WGBH. Everyone had to drive in separate cars, stay masked until cameras were rolling and were COVID-19 tested regularly. Some celebrities felt more comfortable displaying their collectibles on their lawn. Others allowed appraisers inside.

For Hall, a fan of the show, it was a chance to get answers for the items her family has long held dear, including an antique table, old seltzer bottles and chic handbags collected by her grandmother.

Hall also learned something. Her highchair converts into a stroller, something neither she nor her mother knew until the appraiser pointed it out. "That just was so wild," she recalls. "I never knew that it did that. That was the biggest shock."

She says she found the visiting "Antique Roadshow" experience interesting and fun: "I wanted to know the story before they got to me, but I didn't care about the value of them because they meant so much to me," she says.

The celebrity editions are infused with good will and gentle education as is the original show. Or, as Bemko puts it, "we ultimately teach history with material culture."

"That is the beauty of what 'Roadshow' does:

You are actually learning history, but not in a way that you even noticed," she adds.

While the celebrity episodes were born out of necessity, Bemko hopes the concept will live on. "I think we found something else here that's special. And I'd like a way to see it go beyond these four shows," she says. "I think we can do both. I want to do both."

Cooking for Mom: Food Network weekend lineup honors mothers

By Michelle Rose
TV Media

Happy Mother's Day! This year, May 9 is the day dedicated to motherhood and for showing appreciation to all the mothers and mother figures in our lives.

Over on Food Network, another Mother's Day tradition is underway: a weekend lineup dotted with special-themed episodes that will inspire you to cook for, and entertain, Mom. Those episodes will air throughout the day on Saturday (May 8) and on Sunday (May 9), too, which gives you the added option of watching them together.

Start your Sunday early with encore episodes of "Trisha's Southern Kitchen." Next up are two Mother's Day-themed episodes of "Valerie's Home Cooking," followed by four encore episodes of "The Pioneer Woman" that will carry you through brunch.

Then, on a new episode of "Valerie's Home Cooking," host Valerie Bertinelli enjoys a little quality time with her son and his girlfriend. She plans an outdoor movie night — an entertaining idea for Mother's Day during the pandemic (or really any time the weather allows it). The episode will guide you through the steps for preparing Movie Night-worthy snacks for everyone to enjoy, including an onion ring wedge salad with homemade ranch dressing, and a sweet-and-salty treat: movie theater bark.

On a new episode of "Girl Meets Farm," Molly Yeh throws a sprinkle-filled tea party in honor of Mother's Day. Yeh preps rose cupcake cones, savory hot dog flower buns, ham and cheese sandwiches on sour cream and chive scones, and some fairy toast with marzipan butter and homemade sprinkles.

It's followed by two more episodes of "Trisha's Southern Kitchen" before the theme continues later in the afternoon on "Guy's Grocery Games." In one of the episodes, the three contestants must compete in teams with their mothers. In another, three all-star judges (Beau MacMillan, Aarti Sequeira and Justin Warner) and their moms must shop and cook their way to a $20,000 victory for charity — Guy Fieri's own mother is on hand to give the judges a list of mandatory ingredients they must use to prep their Mother's Day dinner.

Moms shape our sense of taste from the beginning (our food preferences develop in the womb). The foods they choose for us, for them, can influence our lifelong eating habits; perhaps that's why food plays such a central role in many Mother's Day traditions. Cooking is a form of nurturing, and on this day it serves as an expression of gratitude to those who have nurtured, mentored and guided us (and our taste buds).

Artists, musicians help Vaca farmers

Joy Ranch event benefits fire victims

By Richard Freedman
rfreedman@timesheraldonline.com

Last year's LNU Lightning Complex Fire that incinerated more than 350,000 acres, destroyed nearly 1,500 structures and killed six people continues to impact many in Vacaville and surrounding communities.

"We're hearing that people are shocked and hurting," said Karen Lee Ford, a member of the Pleasants Valley Agricultural Association and co-owner of Clay's Bees.

It was in October, just as the horrific two-month fires were extinguished, "that we were hearing from the community," with groups and individuals hoping to contribute.

Because of the outpouring of support, "From Ashes to Springtime: Folk Music and Fine Art Fire Recovery Benefit" was organized, with the May 22 fund-raiser at Joyful Ranch in Pleasants Valley of Vacaville.

Money raised assists farms affected by the devastating fire, with Bay Area artists from around the Bay Area offering their work that documented the rebirth of the area since the fall with illustrations, paintings, and photographs. The event includes music by Joe Sam and the Live Music Center.

Around 10 landowners allowed roughly 20 artists on their property for the project — a rarity, Ford said.

"These are landowners who had never had people on their property, never opened their doors to the artists," Ford said, with the goal of "painting the regeneration of the valley after the fire as seen by the artists as they take us to springtime."

The host sites included: Samuel's Ranch Sustainable; Girl on the Hill; Wingate Training Center; Morningsun Herb Farm; Brazelton Farm; Be Love Farm; Soul Food Farm; Zinger Ranch; and the event site, Joyful Ranch.

Many are "working now on how to rebuild some of these areas; how to regenerate this land," Ford said, with "Ashes to Springtime" a "kicking off point for us."

"This journey of connecting and hope and dedication ... to restore these farmers' hope," Ford said.

Several of the farms were so devastated, they won't return, she said. Others will recoup only some of their losses via insurance.

Ford has heard that "many of the generational landowners being priced out of rebuilding."

"Support for California small and home farmers is not really there like it used to be," she said, emphasizing that "small farmers sure seem important for us to support to ensure food for townships."

Joyful Ranch is the original home and ranch of W. J. Pleasants, the man responsible for the name of the valley. He and his father started ranching in Pleasants Valley after arriving from the gold fields in 1850. They built the home that his granddaughter, Ethel Hoskins, lives in today. The home has survived several significant earthquakes and now, a wildfire. While the two-story home was untouched, the historic barn and several other outbuildings burned down completely.

Access to the May 22 art benefit is limited and pre-registration is required at VacavilleFarmers.com.

Guests pick either 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. or noon to 3 p.m. time slot. It is a cash only entry — suggested minimum donation is $7 per person. The art will be on sale and artists accept cash, Venmo, and Square. For more information, or to pre-register, please visit VacavilleFarmers.com

Donations will go to the Pleasants Valley farmers affected by the 2020 LNU Lightning Complex Fire. Pleasants Valley Agriculture Association (PVAA) is a group of farmers, and agriculture and ancillary business owners, located in the rural areas of Vacaville, with a collective interest in agriculture tourism, preserving agriculture land, and cross-promoting with local businesses in Solano County.
