WE'VE BEEN HELPING PEOPLE FOR 70 YEARS
SWITCH TO TRAVIS
& WE CAN HELP EVEN MORE

Travis Credit Union has been rooted in the community since 1951. With $4 billion in assets and 24 branches, including several throughout Fairfield, Vacaville and the rest of Solano County, we are here to change lives and lift communities through financial wellness.

In 2020, Forbes ranked Travis as a Top 10 Best-In-State Credit Union for our branch service, digital technology and trust, among other things. We were also awarded the 2020 U.S. Air Force Distinguished Credit Union of the Year, for the second consecutive year.

If you're looking for a new place to bank, select a local financial institution with roots that have run deep in the valley for the past 70 years. Switch to Travis today.

Join us at traviscu.org, call 800-877-8328 or visit a local branch.

Thank you for your membership.

FROM THE INTERIM PRESIDENT/CEO

A couple of weeks ago, I presented an annual report to our City Council to provide an overview of the Chamber, expound upon our activities in the last fiscal year in performance of our service agreement with the City, and give a look forward at some of the programs planned for 2021-22. In case you missed the meeting, I wanted to share a few excerpts from that report here.

The last fiscal year, was one of the most tumultuous years the business community has faced in a long time, building on the complete disruption of life as we knew it with the onset of COVID19 restrictions that began in March 2020. As a business, the Chamber felt many of the same impacts that every business felt – a decrease in customers, challenges with staffing, interruption of normal operations, and the constant struggle of trying to understand and adhere to ever-changing guidelines on how to conduct business. Despite these challenges, the Chamber endeavored to be a community resource and continue to perform essential services for the support and regrowth of our members, our city's businesses, and economic recovery.

The Chamber is dedicated to creating opportunities for business success, providing outreach services for community-wide benefit, and supporting the city's economic development activities. To this end, in 2019 the Chamber entered into a five-year service agreement with the City of Vacaville to provide business support services to complement those of the city. Outlined below are highlights of the activities and programs undertaken by the Chamber in the five categories included in that agreement.

Promoting and Supporting Local Business

- Established a Chamber Grant to assist members experiencing financial hardship.
- Created a Business Bingo promotion to drive business to members.
- Developed a "Dinner for Two" promotion to support local restaurants.
- Partnered with Genentech to deliver $17,750 in grants to small, local businesses through the "Genentech Goes to Town" program.
- The Young Professionals of Vacaville (YPV) coordinated the "Munchie of the Month" to raise funds for their adopted charity.

Professional Networking and Connecting

- Held the Chamber's first in-person event in over a year, the Night of Champions annual dinner.
- Encouraged (and achieved) the expansion of participation on Chamber committees.
- Held virtual, monthly meetings of the Travis Regional Armed Forces Committee (TRAFAC) to connect with Travis AFB and community leaders.
- YPV held monthly Networking Happy Hour events to reach new demographics and future business leaders.

Workforce Development

- Held a virtual job fair to connect employers with potential employees.
- Helped conduct mock interviews for the Work Ready Certification program.
- Held the annual Employee of the Year luncheon virtually to recognize outstanding employees.
- Promoted the Vacaville Chamber Educational Foundation (VCEF) scholarship program, the Chamber's 501c3 that focuses on assisting high school graduates and adult learners returning to school who may not qualify for traditional scholarships.

- Maintained the VacaWorks.com website as a resource for employers and job seekers.

Economic Development

- Facilitated an Economic Development Update webinar with city staff.
- Engaged with city staff through the Chamber's Business Issues Committee to stay abreast of city projects and goals and support those efforts.
- Met with the "Big 4" (City of Vacaville, Chamber, Visit Vacaville, and Downtown Vacaville) on a regular basis to discuss topics pertinent to the city as a whole.
- Participated in the city's Economic Development Advisory Committee (EDAC) to provide input on issues affecting the business community.

Information and Outreach Services

- Conducted Candidate Forums for City Council and the School Board elections.
- Hosted a series of "Meet Your Council" town hall forums.
- Participated in the Dia de las Madres community resource fair, providing information on how to start a business in Vacaville as well as workforce development resources.
- Held a town hall forum with Congressman Garamendi.
- Conducted a membership survey to gauge sentiments on the Chamber's activities and role in the community.
- Maintained a COVID resources web page.
- Worked with Solano SBDC to bring funding resources and educational programming to businesses.

Looking Forward

Although recent weeks have brought back some uncertainty to business operations due to an upsurge in COVID infections, the Chamber is prepared to implement its traditional calendar of activities and programs. This will include many of the activities accomplished last year, a reviving of our major annual events, as well as a host of new programs.

Operationally, the Chamber is looking to expand its outreach activities to reach more of our community through increased digital and traditional marketing activities. One of the steps towards reaching that goal is the recent application for and awarding of a Google Ads Grant to extend our budget. Creative funding through grants like this, as well as service contracts, and fundraising activities will continue to be sought out to supplement our core income stream of membership dues and ensure the financial health of our organization. The Chamber is also continually re-imagining our business model to meet the challenge of an ever-changing business climate. This is particularly important in the area of member services and business outreach, and we are working diligently on adapting our operations to be responsive to the goals and needs of our members and community partners.

Please get in touch if you'd like to learn more about what's happening at the Vacaville Chamber!

Vacaville Chamber of Commerce

FROM THE CHAIRMAN

As Summer comes to an end and we welcome the Autumn breezes and changing of colors, I hope this finds you safe and prosperous.

A lot has been going on in the news — locally and globally. The recent events of Afghanistan and how the events have transpired created sadness and anger in many of us, myself included. This got me thinking of my own leadership style and those that are charged to lead others, in business and otherwise.

The burden of leadership is heavy and it often times feels like the weight of the world is on our shoulders. With well-trained teams, the leader understands the strengths and weaknesses of their respective teammates. In execution, a decentralized team contributes the successful completion of the mission and ultimately the organization. The goal of the leader indirectly becomes the creation of other leaders.

Back in 2004, former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, then Brigadier General Joseph Dunford, USMC came to visit his Marines in the “field” in Ramadi, Iraq. At the time he was the Assistant Division Commander of the First Marine Division, responsible for ground operations in Iraq for the Marine Corps. His convoy stopped on Route Michigan and as he dismounted, he came up to me to check on things. With a sense of urgency, I attempted to move the General to a covered position. In the past, Route Michigan had been known for snipers, random gun-fire, rockets, mortars, improvised explosive devices and even suicide vehicles. We had experienced them all. The General stopped, unsnapped his helmet and put it in the crook of his arm, looked me in the eyes, with the intent to impart knowledge and said, “Ed, I’ve had some success in my life because I have followed two rules: Rule #1, I always surround myself with great people.” He then looked around, took a deep breath, exhaled, and said, “I always have a hard time remembering the second rule.” I laughed, but it was something that stuck with me. He wasn’t calloused or apathetic. He was deliberately showing us that he trusted us...with his life. He knew we were up to the task and his junior leaders to take charge of the situation and carry out the plan of the day. We had every expectation of maintaining his trust and confidence. What the General taught me that day has been reinforced over my career and still used today in the business world.

What made General Dunford an exceptional leader in my eyes was that he was the model example of what to follow. His demeanor in his actions, his firm expectations coupled with positive encouragement in the way he communicated with his junior leadership, his unending appreciation for the job his Marines were doing, and his ability to give his full attention in the moment, made him a special leader. When he visited us in the streets of Ramadi, he exited his vehicle and knew many of the people that were near him. He called me by name. He asked me how my family was doing and knew personal details about them. He asked me personal questions that had no relevance to the mission at hand...or did they? His ability to look after the welfare of his Marines while maintaining his focus on the mission was impressive. Equally impressive was his ability to develop a sense of responsibility of those in his charge. The General gave the feeling that he was like any other person, and he was, but he also was so much more. He was calm under pressure, decisive, and was a student of leadership and history. He made sure his expectations were known and followed. He allowed for mistakes and made sure the lessons were learned. I appreciated my time under his leadership and have tried to emulate many of his examples, with varying degrees of success, over my career.

My experience has been, that it is our mindset and the people we surround ourselves with that make all the difference. The Chamber of Commerce is actively working in front and behind the scenes on your behalf. We look forward to connecting with each of you at a Chamber event or out in our community. Stay safe and healthy.
